Faculty and students take this knowledge into their own practices and daily activities.

4. Diversity activities in the Classroom

- Students complete case studies and patient care modules or clinical experiences where they work with individuals of many diverse backgrounds. Students must assess how their actions and reactions will affect the care of their patient and the patient’s family.

5. Department activities pursuing Diversity and Inclusion

- We advocate for social justice and diversity by educating our students on these important topics and how they can affect their patients and the overall health of an individual. We want our student to understand how to care for a client holistically and how to meet their needs in all areas. Faculty complete this through case studies, exams, assignments, and clinical experiences.
